MAY 2015

A RIVER RAN THROUGH IT

Local citizens view Arrowrock Dam - the tallest in the world at the time - after its completion in 1915.

As residents of the west, we know that our livelihood depends on water. This year we honor the centennial of the completion of Arrowrock Dam and the influence of historic dams and water throughout the state. Though often a topic of debate, dams provide reservoirs for the benefit of agriculture, recreation, hydroelectric power, and flood control. Additionally, dams have played an integral role in the development and sustainability of Idaho.

Join us as we offer programs about historic dams and the influence of water in Idaho history. The Bureau of Reclamation (BOR) will present a history of Arrowrock Dam as seen through a collection of historic photographs. Events also cover other topics related to Idaho's history, archaeology, architectural history, and historic preservation.

For more information contact the Idaho State Historic Preservation Office, 210 Main Street, Boise, Idaho 83702, or 208-334-3847, or visit the web site: www.history.idaho.gov/preservation-month and the Facebook page: <https://www.facebook.com/IDPreservationMonth>.

The Idaho State Historical Society is an extraordinary system of cultural and historic resources comprised of the Idaho State Historical Museum, State Archives, State Historic Preservation Office, and Historic Sites Program. We seek to inspire, enrich and engage all Idahoans by leading the state in preserving and sharing our dynamic cultural heritage.

Idaho Archaeology and Historic Preservation Month has been funded in part with federal funds from the US Department of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management, the Bureau of Reclamation, the National Park Service, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Department of Agriculture's US Forest Service and the Department of Defense. However, the contents and opinions of presentations made during Idaho Archaeology and Historic Preservation Month do not necessarily reflect the views or policies of the Department of the Interior, the Department of Agriculture, or the Department of Defense.
