ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In 2001, Bonnie Fuller, Dovie Darchuk, Suzanne Shemwell, Linda VanZant, Barbara Wright, and Carolann Zagafos—members of the Boise Dead Relative Collectors—volunteered over 500 hours to create the first electronic, alphabetical index to Idaho State Penitentiary inmate files in the custody of the Idaho State Historical Society. Julie Yandell volunteered to expand public access even further in 2003, by using census records, prison reports, and registers to compile a list of territorial inmates. Steve Barrett, PhD, of the Society's Public Archives and Research Library, leveraged this generous contribution in 2007 to write a grant to preserve the most fragile files and photographs (those originating between 1864 and 1947). A year-long project to preserve originally tri-folded records, reunite documents with mug shots, develop and implement procedures for handling material restricted by law, and catalog the collection was funded by the National Historical Publications and Records Commission. Rachel Johnstone took on management of the project in September 2007; this catalog represents the ongoing efforts of Society volunteers and staff to expand and enhance access to Idaho's historical public record.

PREFACE

During the 83 years encompassed by this catalog (1864-1947), the Idaho Penitentiary was not merely a series of buildings, nor did “the penitentiary” occupy a single location. Reflecting the migration and evolution of the institution—a history which echoed the changing nature of the territory and the state— this catalog endeavors to present a comprehensive list of all territorial and state prisoners from 1864-1947, as well as a key to inmate files within the Department of Correction archival collection (AR42).

A BRIEF LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

In 1864, the territorial legislative assembly designated the jails in Lewiston (Nez Perce county) and Idaho City (Boise county) as “temporary territorial prisons” and the Nez Perce and Boise county sheriffs as “keepers” under a prison commissioner (the territorial treasurer, ex officio).¹ In 1866, the assembly consolidated the prison and transferred all territorial prisoners to the Boise county jail.² At least 89 men and 2 women were held as territorial prisoners in these jails between 1864 and 1872.

In 1867, the United States Congress provided for the construction of a central and permanent “General Penitentiary and Prison,” an act which the Idaho assembly codified into territorial law in 1869.³ Construction began outside Boise City in April 1870.⁴ In September a local newspaper reported:

The penitentiary looms up like the frowning walls of some impregnable fortress. Distance lends enchantment. This building will be ready for the reception of guests in a very little while. The man who would commit a felony within sight of its gloomy walls ought to spend the remainder of his days within them.⁵

The following year, 1871, the assembly recognized,

That the Penitentiary Building erected by the United States, in the County of Ada, in the Territory of Idaho, be and the same is hereby declared to be the General Penitentiary and Territorial Prison of the Territory of Idaho, wherein shall be confined for reformation and punishment, and employed at hard labor, all offenders who have been, or shall hereafter be convicted and sentenced according to law, to imprisonment at hard labor in the Territorial Prison.⁶

Prisoners, however, were not transferred to the new penitentiary until March 1872, while the territory and federal government negotiated the onerous particulars of financial responsibility, including a contract with the United States Marshal for the territory to act as keeper of the prison.⁷ Governance of the penitentiary shifted again in 1885, when the legislature appointed a three-person prison commission with oversight authority.⁸ In 1889, the commission’s powers included the authority to investigate allegations of mistreatment of prisoners, and to transfer inmates to the Idaho Insane Asylum.⁹

Through an act of first state legislature in 1891, the penitentiary became the Idaho State Penitentiary:

There shall be continually maintained, for the care and custody of convicts in Idaho, a penitentiary at Boise City, in Ada County, on the lands connected therewith and set apart and reserved therefor and granted and donated to the State of Idaho by the general government upon its admission into the Union.¹⁰

While the Idaho constitution (adopted July 1890) made provision for inmates to apply for reprieve by creating a board of pardons (distinct from the prison commission), the board did not function until the legislature set a schedule for the board’s meetings in January 1891.¹¹ This resulted in practical delays for inmates petitioning for release, including Thomas McClary (no. 8), who remarked to a friend on the unfortunate circumstances which obliged a retreat “into ‘winter quarters on this campaign’ of mine.”¹²

The state’s 1891 legislation initiated a number of changes which would define the operations and history of the penitentiary for many years to come. It created the post of “warden” and expanded the powers and duties of the prison commission (distinct from the board of pardons), designated a prison physician, provided a mechanism for the continued housing of federal prisoners, and set an admission charge for visitors (“not to exceed twenty-five cents”), the funds from which were to supply a prison library. The legislation also limited punishment: “No punishment shall ever be inflicted except solitary confinement on bread and water, or by wearing ball and chain attached to one leg.”¹³

During the period covered by this catalog (1864-1947), Idaho incarcerated at least 7,570 men, women, and children in Lewiston, Idaho City, and Boise (figures 1-2).¹⁴ These prisoners came from 46 counties (including the non-extant Alturas and Logan counties), as well as federal jurisdictions, and at the time of their incarceration, ranged in ages from 10 to 82 (figures 3-4). Indices for women prisoners and juvenile inmates are provided at the back of this catalog.

14 1877 legislation further complicates reconstruction of the historical record in respect to territorial prisoners. It provided that, in cases where a territorial prison sentence was less than one year, the jail of the county or adjoining county wherein the prisoner was tried should retain the prisoner and the jail “shall be deemed the territorial prison.” To provide for the imprisonment of Territorial Prisoners in county jails in certain cases, Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Idaho, 9th Sess. For example, persons “held for trial (robbery)” are counted under “robbery.” Assault includes a number of convictions that might today be considered attempted felonies, for example, “assault with intent to rob.” Liquor includes all such related offenses, including trafficking alcohol in the Indian territories (1871-1908), prohibition violations (1916-1932), and driving under the influence. Prostitution includes convictions for those engaged in, purchasing, or promoting prostitution. Sodomy includes those convictions termed the “infamous crime against nature.” Miscellaneous includes crimes with fewer than six incarcerations each, such as “depositing in US Mail for mailing and delivery obscene, lewd and lascivious matter,” “malicious injury to buildings by explosion of dynamite,” or “exposing another person to infection of a dangerous disease.”

prisoners was kept until 1878.¹⁵ Idaho’s 1891 penitentiary legislation specifically addressed this deficiency, and obligated the warden to keep and make available “books, accounts, documents, registers and reports” concerning the operations of the penitentiary.¹⁶ While penitentiary staff began to use log books and registers in 1878, from about 1884 they began to systematically record inmates through the use of registers, forms, and photographs. Although many early inmate files contain photographs, only in the latter half of the 1890s did penitentiary staff began to systematically collect “mug shots” as part of the intake process.

HOW TO USE THE CATALOG

Standardized inmate records make up the bulk (185 cubic feet) of the Society’s correctional collection (AR42). These inmate files were transferred to the Society’s Public Archives and Research Library by the Idaho Department of Correction in 1995. While the majority of these documents remain in excellent condition, extensive water and handling damage dating from the 1970s is evident in some parts of the collection. During general archival preservation of the inmate files, we also aimed to restore the original order to the collection, while providing cross-references to other archival holdings wherever possible. Inmates for whom the archives holds distinct case files are assigned individual file reference numbers, as follows:

File: AR42 / 20072408 / 1006.2-4 / 883

This catalog has endeavored to comprehensively cover inmates from 1864 to 1947, including those for whom individual case files do not survive and who can only be identified through reference to a broad range of archives holdings. Inmates identified in this way are indicated in the catalog as “collection references,” with citations included in the “notes” field (see diagram on page 1). However, due to the scarcity of documentation for the earliest years of the penitentiary, “lost” inmates may yet be identified. In the same way, cross-references provided in this catalog are by no means comprehensive, but rather represent a starting point for researchers wishing to dig deeper. For example, we have provided a limited number of individual references to county criminal cases. If you are interested in access to the criminal (or in some cases, probate) court file for any inmate, please contact a librarian or archivist. The Society holds a wide array of original and microfilm resources for public access. A glossary to cross-references is provided.

A NOTE ABOUT NUMBERS AND NAMES

The arrangement of this catalog— in chronological and register order— attempts to mirror the methods penitentiary staff used to catalog and manage prisoners. Penitentiary staff began to assign sequential register numbers to both new and existing inmates from about 1884. This numbering system was neither uniform, nor consistently applied, however. As late as 1902, some inmates were processed without numbers or without a formal record. Frank Barrett and George Ferguson— both held on federal charges in 1902— were the last known “unregistered” prisoners.

In addition, from 1886 to 1893 some 60 inmates were assigned numbers which— followed by the letter “B”— paralleled the numbering system for the main prison population. Of these “B-numbered” inmates, 15 were incarcerated for crimes related to trafficking alcohol in tribal territories, and 25 for unlawful cohabitation or on a charge of polygamy. In 1904, penitentiary staff reintegrated the remaining “B” inmates into the general population, assigning each a new number from the main register. In these cases, inmates are listed in this catalog under both their standard and “B” numbers.

For inmates who recidivated (were incarcerated more than once), the penitentiary assigned unique numbers for each new incarceration.¹⁸ This is an important philosophical distinction, one which delineates the difference between numbering a human being and numbering an incarceration event. For example, when “Bugs” Miller completed his sentence as inmate no. 748 in 1901, that number, along with Miller’s sentence, was terminated. When incarcerated again in 1911, Miller became inmate no. 1768, with distinct sentence and a distinct opportunity to bring that particular event to a close.

In addition, each inmate is listed by the name under which they were incarcerated— regardless of whether this name was proven to be a “true” name or an alias— followed by secondary names gleaned from the inmate’s record. This arrangement is also designed to preserve the original order of the collection. Joe Miller— almost certainly not his true name— (no. 4322) had at least 21 names on record, any one of which may have been the name he was given at birth. When asked for his aliases during his intake interview, Frank Wilcox (no. 3235) claimed to have had “hundreds of them.”¹⁹ To help researchers identify multiple incarcerations and inmates who were imprisoned under aliases, we have provided an alphabetical index to the 13,190 names, nicknames, alternate spellings, and aliases used by the 7,570 inmates in this catalog.

INTRODUCTION

A HISTORIC MYSTERY, SOLVED

by Rachelle N Littau

Researching history is like detective work. You scour the scene, look under every rock, talk to every possible witness, review security tapes (okay, historic photos) and from your findings try to present the most accurate picture of an event as you can. Of course, the findings are subject to the detective's interpretation. The Old Idaho Penitentiary can be a particularly difficult and sometimes frustrating case to crack.

The Old Idaho Penitentiary at Boise served as Idaho's prison for 101 years. Following the Idaho Department of Correction's move to a new institution south of Boise in 1973, the Idaho State Historical Society took over administration of the site. The acquisition of the prison site and its subsequent opening to visitors gave people from around the world the opportunity to enter the cellblocks and walk the yards where prisoners worked and lived for more than a century. While simply wandering through the site is a powerful experience, that experience becomes more meaningful through sharing stories of these prisoners. This is where the detective work comes into play.

Beyond the physical prison site, the Idaho State Historical Society administers a vast amount of resources that contribute to the interpretation of this historic institution. The Idaho State Historical Museum holds personal artifacts used by guards and inmates, while the Society's Public Archives and Research Library holds a vast collection of research materials including photographs, oral histories, wardens' reports, and inmate files. Yet even with all these resources the Old Idaho Penitentiary still contains mysteries that require detective work to try to solve.

The case of Douglas Van Vlack (no. 5264) is an excellent example of just one of those mysteries. Van Vlack received the death penalty for the kidnapping and murder of his estranged wife. He was sentenced to hang at the prison on 10 December 1937. He never made it to the gallows. After visiting with his mother on 9 December, Van Vlack slipped past guards at the prison and climbed into the rafters of his cellhouse. After a short time in the rafters, Van Vlack proclaimed, "My mother told me it was all right for me to choose the way I wanted to die. I'll never hang on that rope."¹ He then dove head first into the cellhouse's concrete floor. He died from his injuries a few hours later.

The story sounds straightforward but one small bit of the tale is difficult to determine. Which Old Idaho Penitentiary cellhouse was the location of Van Vlack's suicide? There are two possibilities. Today, these two buildings are called the "New" Cellhouse and "Two House."² Inconsistencies in the existing evidence add to the confusion. However, an educated guess can be made by examining and interpreting all the available evidence.

The Idaho Statesman, a Boise newspaper, provided a great deal of evidence for this story in articles published in the days leading up to Van Vlack's impending execution and following his subsequent suicide.³ These events were front page news in the 8, 9, and 10 December 1937 editions. Most of the evidence from the Statesman indicates that Two House was the site of the suicide. Photographs in both the 8 and 9 December editions show the exterior of Two House and identify it as the building where Van Vlack awaited his fate. The 10 December edition printed an interior photograph of Two House as well as an "X" drawn where Van Vlack purportedly climbed onto a table to gain access to the second floor to begin his upward ascent. No table is shown in the photograph.

Three articles about Van Vlack and the event appeared in the 10 December edition of the Statesman. One of these articles stated that Van Vlack "...hurtled from a steel rafter 28 feet above the concrete floor in the death house." Again the evidence points directly to Two House. It has steel rafters as opposed to the wooden rafters in the "New" Cellhouse.

There are, however, a few instances in the 10 December Statesman that throw doubt on the assumption that Two House is the location of the suicide. The 10 December

 - 2 The "New" Cellhouse, the first cellhouse built after the original structure in 1870, was constructed in 1889. Construction on Two House, also known as the North Wing, began in 1899 and was completed in 1911.
 - 3 Idaho Statesman (8 December 1937); Idaho Statesman (9 December 1937); Idaho Statesman (10 December 1937)

article noting the steel rafters added confusion to the story mentioning twice that the cellblock had three tiers. Two House has four tiers. The “New” Cellhouse has three. The 10 December Statesman also details that a net was being brought into the cellhouse but that the net could not be deployed because the corridor was only seven feet wide (the net required a width of ten feet). Again, the “New” Cellhouse’s corridors are less than ten feet wide; the corridors in Two House are wider than ten feet.

If a researcher were to rely solely on newspaper accounts, Two House would appear to be the most logical location for the suicide even with minor inconsistencies in the evidence. However, other resources exist that call this assumption into question.

Two possible witnesses to the event identified themselves to Society staff. Both of these men were former guards and both were adamant, more than a half century after the event, that the suicide occurred in the “New” Cellhouse.

The Society also possesses other resources about Douglas Van Vlack. His inmate file unfortunately does not shed any light on which building he died in. Another clue to the mystery was recently discovered in the E L “Shorty” Fuller collection. Fuller was a freelance Associated Press photographer who photographed for the Statesman from 1937 to 1942. This collection contains negatives, photographic prints, and scrapbooks that document various news stories. Two photographs in the collection, presumably taken shortly after the suicide, show the interior of a cellhouse— the “New” Cellhouse. The first photograph shows a mattress on the ground next to the wall. The back of the photograph reads, “Where Van Vlack died. A foot or two from where he did his dive from the rafter.”⁴ One of the 10 December Statesman articles mentions this mattress. The article says, “Van Vlack... was moved a few feet and was placed on a mattress.” The second Fuller photograph shows a table in the corridor of the “New” Cellhouse that could be the one Van Vlack used to gain access to the second tier of the cellhouse.

After reviewing all available evidence in the Van Vlack mystery, most staff and volunteers at the Old Idaho Penitentiary believe the suicide of Douglas Van Vlack occurred in the “New” Cellhouse. The discovery of new evidence could always change that belief.

Those who share Old Penitentiary history with the public try to be as accurate as possible, though determining what really happened can often be challenging. The staff strives to be respectful to the experiences of those men and women who spent time at the penitentiary as those experiences bring value and relevance to the old prison buildings. Sharing the site’s stories with visitors as well as the difficulty in finding the “truth” behind those stories makes the visitors’ experience at the site interesting, meaningful and can sometimes inspire them to investigate the prison’s history on their own.

The inmate files contain a wealth of information about the men and women who served time at the prison. The Society’s catalog of inmate files will make accessing those files easier. This catalog will provide one more resource for investigating Old Penitentiary history and contribute greatly to uncovering stories of the Old Idaho Penitentiary’s former residents, staff and historic buildings. The inmate files project has identified more than 1,250 “missing” inmates. Previously, there was no evidence that these inmates— whose records were lost or sometimes folded into other inmates’ files— had served time here. Who knows what stories those missing inmates have to tell?

INTRODUCTION

A TALE OF TWO INMATES

by Pamala S Parker

I finished the book and put it down.¹ It was one I choose to take to the mountains to read on my family's hunting trip. It attracted my attention because it was a novel based on a true story of a murder that happened in Valley County, Idaho, in the early 1900s.

I finished reading the book, but I knew the story had not ended. I wondered how much of this story was true. I couldn't wait to get home to find out more.

My search started with the internet. I Googled. Nothing. I came to the Idaho State Historical Society's website and found they had an inmate catalog they were working on. I still had a huge hurdle. I didn't know the real names of the victim or of the husband and wife who were involved in the murder. I knew I would need to make a trip to the Public Archives and Research Library. There I found helpful staff who were able to determine the names of the husband and wife. Both had served time in the Idaho Penitentiary.

I now knew the husband's name was Charles Ernst and the wife's name was Frances Ernst. This was exciting, but that didn't compare to the excitement I felt when this helpful staff member asked, "Would you like to see these inmate files?"² Of course I wanted to see them. I had no idea that was even possible. My mind was spinning with anticipation of what might be gleaned from an inmate file. I opened up the first file and staring me in the face was a photo of Charles. Wow!

That day at the Public Archives and Research Library, I was handed a couple photos, some files about Charles and Frances, and an invitation to step back in time into the lives of total strangers, nearly 100 years in the past.

That one moment of curiosity that I couldn't shake has turned into many months of fun and exciting research. A further search at the Public Archives and Research Library uncovered the actual transcripts from Charles' trial.³ This was amazing and sometimes comical reading.

Just before the trial, Charles talked Sheriff E A Smith into letting him go to the Mitchell Hotel where Frances was staying, so they could talk.⁴ Sheriff Smith agreed with Charles' scheme, even though he knew this was not exactly appropriate. Charles was hoping to talk Frances into taking the rap on the murder. Sheriff Smith was hoping to hear a confession from Charles. Everyone had their own agenda.

One of the new fangled "Dictaphone" machines was brought in. The cone style voice transmitter end was placed in Frances' room and the telephone style receiving portion was placed in the adjacent room. This failed miserably. The technology was not advanced enough for the conversation to be heard. More meetings were arranged and on the last attempt a 12 inch square hole was made in the wall connecting the two rooms. On Frances' side of the wall, a cover was hung to hide the hole. In the adjoining room, a man was assigned to stand with his head poking through into Frances' room to listen for a confession. This also failed.

Charles was found guilty of second degree murder and Frances pled guilty to manslaughter. Both were sentenced to serve time in the Idaho State Penitentiary, while their five year old son was placed in the Idaho Children's Home.

I am still turning the pages in documents located at the Public Archives and Research Library, looking at microfilm, reading old newspapers, and searching websites. Months ago I finished reading a book, but today I am still looking for the rest of the story.

I know when I exhaust this search, there is yet another interesting inmate story waiting for me to discover. Maybe there is one waiting for you as well.

HIDDEN HISTORIES

A CHRONOLOGICAL OUTLINE

NB Sources for this timeline are available from the files and cross-reference for each respective inmate. Check the catalog by inmate number to find the reference numbers for each individual.

James Oscar Baker (no. 88) becomes the penitentiary's youngest inmate at age 10. Baker pled guilty to manslaughter for shooting a man in the Soda Springs saloon where his father tended bar. A petition for his pardon claimed the inquest jurors were "unable to agree" that a boy of Baker's "tender years" could be held "responsible for his acts or not."

The district attorney of Kootenai county railed in a letter against First District judge Norman Buck's recommendation to pardon Charles Ross (no. 177): "I do not believe it will have any effect on the Governor. First, because Governor Stevenson will not pardon Ross if every man in the Territory recommended it unless he is convinced that it was justifiable homicide, and secondly, that Judge Buck has never convinced Gov. Stevenson of his ability, honesty, or fairness any more than he has the people of Kootenai or Shoshone Counties, and I can just fancy Gov. Stevenson throwing down his recommendation with a look of disgust and the forcible remark of 'Judge Buck be damned!'"

Frank Ferron (no. 154) dug through the wall of his cell, into the cell of Nate Young (no. 161) and Thomas Lovett (no. 162) in preparation for his first escape attempt. Ferron was later disciplined for assaulting Edward Harrington (no. 180) with a "heavy tin cup" while at dinner, for escaping by removing the bricks from the ceiling of his cell, for destroying food, and for insolence, laziness, and disobedience.

opportunity to escape during the last two years in bond at the Pen. has done all the house, besides taking two children at the time. My wife going to turn to leaving the child him I have after

Dennis McCarthy (no. 73), convicted of murder, received letters of recommendation from five former wardens and superintendents of the penitentiary. Among them, US Marshall John Hailey noted that he entrusted McCarthy with the care of his two children, but professed ignorance "as to his guilt or innocence of the crime for which he was sent here."

A letter to the governor regarding William Hordemann (no. 172) noted that co-defendant Rodney Wright (no. 113) had come to Idaho "from Oregon ambitious, as many of our western boys are to become a cow-boy. He was thrown into wreckless company, young full of vivacity, got mixed up with a drunken carousal and shot one of his companions... but most of the people, like myself, have little sympathy with this cow-boy element."

A petition for the pardon of Richard Peeke (no. 98), signed by over 250 citizens, addressed the Board of Pardons as "Our Servants." While "condemning the license of the past by our ex servants in pardoning cold blooded murders," the petitioners called on the board to now "let' Richard Peeke out from 'our' prison."

A letter of recommendation from the War Department called attention to Dr E J O'Callaghan's (no. 135) service record in the "Indian Campaigns in Wyoming away back in the 'seventies,'" and a recommendation from Admiral Benjamin Sands "referring in the highest terms to his conduct at the storming of Fort Fisher— which assault you know was no pic-nic."

John Wilson (no. 251) organized a prison "Thanksgiving Programme" with music contributed from both inmates and the outside community. Wilson, Monroe Palmer (no. 332) and Orlando Barker (no. 232) were to play the harp, while Joseph Ross (no. 293) and James Marble (no. 240) sang.

Petitions for pardon discussed how language and culture may have affected the fair (or otherwise) trial of Yee Wee (no. 704), who reportedly "had abandoned some Chinese customs, and was out of harmony with the Chinese residents of Hailey on race questions."

1906

Frank Gardner (no. 871) was given charge of the penitentiary photographic department, in addition to oversight of the prison hospital.

1907

"Trusty" David Richards' (no. 850) request for parole was supported by letters from six penitentiary staff, including the warden, a judge, and some 300 citizens and merchants of Malad City, including DL Evans, then of the Malad Cooperative. Within six months of his release, residents reported that Richards was disturbing the peace and "is drunk and has been drunk the greatest part of the time for the last two months."

1908

Ernest Lindquist (no. 1431), recently immigrated from Sweden, began his Idaho term (less than a year) for burglary. Within a year of his release, Lindquist had killed another man and begun a 42-year term in Iowa, where he became known as the "Forgotten Man of the Iowa State Pen." Lindquist married shortly after his release in 1952; the US Department of Justice instituted deportation proceedings against him in 1953.

1909

Fred Harris (no. 1622), Harry Reel (no. 1648), James Cook (no. 1672), and John Burke (no. 1688) used nitroglycerin to burglarize the Boise Ice Cream Company on Bannock Street.

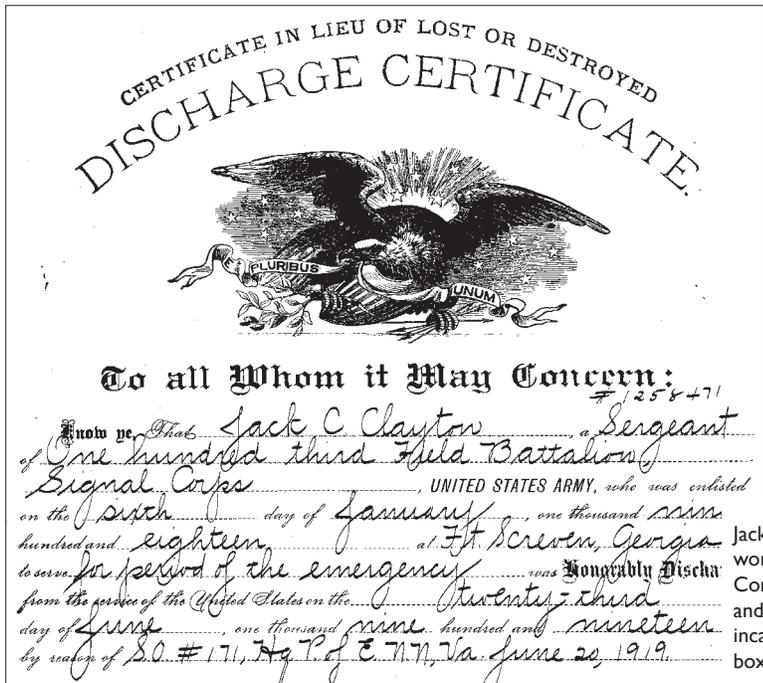

Edward Streeter (no. 1393) complained to the warden that, while on parole, his employer "would only furnish me meat when he had it himself. Sometimes I can't get any for 10 days at a time."

1910

John Whittle (no. 1574), Harry O'Neal (no. 1575), James Cameron (no. 1576), Robert Page (no. 1577), Frank Martin (no. 1578), and Bert Russell (no. 1579)—all incarcerated in June 1909—were deemed to be "illegally imprisoned" under indeterminate sentence law and released on writs of habeas corpus.

While a "trusty" at the penitentiary power house, A E Miller (no. 1545) sabotaged the machinery by dosing the oil used with emery dust.

Thomas Jennings (no. 1809) was born in Buffalo, New York, of Irish-born parents, and had two daughters living in Santa Cruz, California. He told the prison authorities he had worked in California, Washington, Oregon, and Idaho as a railroad man, miner and "mining promoter;" "superintendent of streets," tax collector, store owner, postmaster, optician, writer, "Sewing Machine agent... & etc."

Jack Clayton (no. 3062) was 16 when the first world war began. He enlisted in the Signal Corps shortly after his eighteenth birthday, and served in the Marne. At the time of his incarceration, Clayton was making a living as a boxer and prize fighter.

Oscar Neilsen (no. 2309) was convicted of burglary after being “discovered in a dry goods store on a Sunday morning standing near the shirt counter where working mens’ shirts were kept, picking out a shirt for himself.” According to the prosecutor, “There was no evidence of any intention to get anything but things which he needed for himself.”

Lee Ross (no. 2402) was convicted of burglary, and his father (Daniel Ross no. 2401), brother (J D Ross no. 2403), and stepmother (Mamie Ross no. 2404) of receiving stolen property, thus, reportedly, bringing an end to a string of burglaries in Albion, Marshfield, and surrounding areas of Cassia county. Mamie Ross was pardoned 10 months later, so that she could care for her “infant child.”

Lee Roy Rice’s (no. 2738) mother sent him a lock of her hair with a letter: “Abner got up & beat it three weeks ago last night at about 11 oclock and left me with just 20¢ and not a speck of feed for the stock and I have sure had some time to get things straightened out. George Philips and Jack Murphy has been helping me to put in some garden and water the stock for me and George went after a load of hay for me so the stock wouldnt starve. I wouldnt mind it so much if my lease on the place was all paid so they could not set me out of a home.”

Gust Haraldson (no. 2828) began a two-year term in the penitentiary for being a member of the International Workers of the World while employed on the construction of the “North & South State Highway.” Haraldson “was indifferent as to the purposes of the organization as long as he secured employment,” according to the prosecuting attorney and Second District judge who, along with the sheriff of Idaho county, offered character references.

Otto Weibel (no. 3106) was transferred to the “Idaho State Sanitarium” in Nampa on the recommendation of the prison physician. Thirty-six years later in 1959, the institution’s superintendent attempted to return Weibel to the penitentiary stating: “Otto’s hearing difficulty has, no doubt, handicapped his learning to a great extent...There is nothing in this which would make him eligible for continued care at a school for a mentally deficient person.” In response, the Board of Correction granted Weibel a discharge, post-dated to 1936, on the expiration of his maximum sentence.

Seventeen-year old Lester Thompson (no. 3288, later no. 4372) set fire to the floor of the Idaho Industrial School administration building. While the Fremont county prosecutor argued that Thompson “has frankly confessed his faults and there is, of course, a chance for reformation,” prison intake records classed him as a “criminal type” because of the shape of his ears (being small and “close to head”).

Frank Coleman (no. 3244) was incarcerated for stealing 28 sacks of grain, after a series of misfortunes: Drought in 1918 forced his family to leave a farm in Iona. In 1920 the Reclamation Project denied water to the parcel of land he filed under the Cary Act in King Hill. In 1922, a series of miscommunications with a Fairfield “real estate man” left his family homeless. The prosecuting attorney wrote: “Upon being accused he immediately confessed, saying that he was up against it, and made no plea for mercy whatever. I cannot understand him he seemed willing and ready to go to the pen.”

After two years’ in prison for murder, Dong Sing (no. 3171) and Lo Ming (no. 3172) were pardoned. Petitioners successfully argued that the trial and subsequent appeal to the Supreme Court had been prejudiced, “as is usual in all Chinese murder trials.”

During negotiations to deport Rebecca Chacon (no. 3044) at her own expense, federal immigration officials offered to reduce costs by not hiring a female guard, if Chacon would “guarantee to make no complaint of her treatment by Immigration officers.”

While at home in Emmett on parole, Sam Galdus (no. 2928) received a curt letter admitting that the penitentiary had failed to inform him that he had been “released under expiration of sentence” seven months earlier: “The Attorney General called us up and requested that we write you. So you are Free. Very truly yours, WARDEN.”

Petitioners for the release of John Starr (no. 3357) reportedly included the “Biggest business man in Emmett,” an “Old timer,” the “Secretary of the Last Chance Ditch Company,” the “First white child born in Boise and early settler in Payette Valley,” and the “Editor of the Emmett Index, who says that he never heretofore signed a petition for pardon, though he has many times been asked to do so.”

On his intake form, Spanish immigrant Paul Arruti (no. 3589) listed his nearest relative as the Merino Pool Hall in Boise. The prosecuting attorney noted that Arruti’s “associates seem to be of good average character, except as Arruti became Americanized he was occasionally thrown in contact with the jazz class.”

Anthony Zepina (no. 3358) entrusted his watch fob to the warden for safekeeping, along with instructions that he should be buried with it were he to “die here.” Zepina asked that his watch and money be sent to an orphan in “Jugo Slavia” and his clothing and shoes given to “some american poor man.” Zepina was paroled a few months later without his watch fob having been returned to him.

Forger John Doucas (no. 3206) violated his parole and was arrested in Chicago after being sought by the California Bankers Association, American Bankers Association, and the William J Burns International Detective Agency. Doucas was killed at the State Prison at Folsom while attempting to escape in 1927.

Thomas O’Hara’s (no. 3039) letter to warden William Cuddy—addressed as “Old Chap”—from a Chicago jail, protested that he was unable to obtain employment, the Young Men’s Christian Association (YMCA) had taken his card away, “the I.W.W.I fought for don’t know me now”, and that he was being harassed by the “Brutal Cops.” The new warden, Joseph Wheeler, replied that despite O’Hara’s “yeoman service... in trying to establish the rule of the proletariat,” O’Hara would not be allowed to return to Idaho because “while here you acted very much like an ingrate, finding fault and carping criticism with the cuisine service and other appointments.”

To a letter from Albert Workman’s (no. 3814) wife, warden Wheeler replied: “...tone down your letters... Your husband will be embarrassed and it is natural that such letters belittles him and makes it appear to us that he comes from a very tough, immoral environment and it lessens his chances. So be fair to your husband and if you find it impossible to write decently, just omit writing.”

The Lewis County sheriff reported that John Ross (no. 4131) “went through the walls of our jail building on Mon. night” while awaiting trial. The prosecuting attorney claimed Ross had said he “would give up the criminal life only because it does not pay.” He was later (1941) killed as a prowler in Tulsa. Ross’ unidentified body was reported to the FBI as an “Unknown Dead Man.”

1929

Commodore Perry Sam (no. 3344) wrote letters of petition to the governor, a prosecuting attorney, a district judge, a Bannock county commissioner, and “Chief Satan” aka “that unsuspected Spirit of the living”, care of the secretary of state.

Burel McCall (no. 4211) was convicted of possession of liquor after crashing his car into a gasoline pump and later on a side road, and entering a stranger’s home in Garden Gulch, near Culdesac, where he “demolished all of the furniture in the house,” broke out all thirteen windows, and set fire to an out building.

Lester Thompson’s (no. 4372) second incarceration ended four years with a Pocatello baseball team, the “colored Giants.” According to the prosecutor, Thompson’s father “was a rodeo rider and was killed in Montana a year or two ago”; his mother maintained a reputation as a “fine woman” with a “quite respected” family.

Victor Chacon’s (no. 4379) pardon application reflected on 1,000 years of Mayo (Yoreme) history in the Americas, “where my People number about 14,000 Soules, my Father is one the Chiefs of his People, we are an Independent Tribe enjoying full Tribal Rule...”

During the trial of James O’Neil (no. 4448), a witness provided the court with a recipe and proportions for making “a little home brew”—of lemon, sugar, water, yeast, and potatoes—called “Snake River Special”: “Q. What kind of drink would that be after you got it made. A. Real nice drink. Q. Real nice drink, was it. A. Yes, sir. Q. Have you got any Snake River Special on hands at the present time. A. I have not, but I wish I had.” Prohibition ended two years later, in 1933.

After his prison sentence was commuted to time in the Bannock county jail, Leo Lucero (no. 4399) attempted an escape with Charley Cornish (no. 4403) and Leroy Meyers (no. 4405), with the aid of Rulon Wilson (no. 4610). The four men used hack saw blades and a bottle of acid to cut a hole in the floor and through the window bars. All three were sent to the penitentiary for the attempt.

1932 ← Paul Rushton's (no. 4260) mother wrote to the governor and warden requesting that if they received any inquiries about Rushton (released a few months earlier) "will you please pretend he hadn't been there. As Mr Rushton my husband is running for Sheriff, best for folks not know things." Paul Rushton was killed while robbing a bank in Bozeman the same year.

1933 ← David Minton (no. 4669 and 3988) accused nine prison staff (including two wardens) of misappropriating prison supplies for personal gain and complained about lax security at the women's ward. On this occasion, his eighth incarceration, Minton was doing time for assisting Lyda Southard (no. 3052) to escape in 1931.

1935 ← Within two months, William Shaffer (no. 5123) robbed the Linder Service Station, Ustick Mercantile Store, and, on the same day, the Twin Bridges Grocery and Lord's Brothers Grocery, while driving three different "borrowed" cars. During his last two robberies, Shaffer was foiled by the stores' armed proprietors and was arrested a few hours later. The prosecuting attorney called him "one of the toughest men sentenced to the penitentiary for some time, in Idaho." On providing him with a recommendation to the Board of Pardons, the 11th District judge wrote to Harry Martens (no. 5162): "You have too much good stuff in you to be a damned crook. Get that girl out here with you and, in this new land, go to batting straight to first. I have taken a good many chances with men like you, and have had seldom to look like a sheep for so doing. Now— By God! See to it that you don't throw me down."

1936 ← Joy Louise De Cheverieux (no. 5341) was convicted of highway robbery outside McCammon while hitchhiking from Rock Springs. Described as "transient," De Cheverieux's record indicated she had been shot once in the leg and had been held by police in Greensburg, Pennsylvania, as "incorrigible." De Cheverieux climbed over the prison wall with Marjorie Bess (no. 5463) in a 1937 escape attempt.

1937 ← Luella Yates (no. 5444) shot a neighbor who, Yates claimed, had threatened her on three occasions: He fell "14 feet inside of our yard, and 231 feet inside our property." Ten jurors later signed a petition on her behalf, one stating, "I never did think you guilty, when I was on the jury, but expected you to be paroled with the verdict we turned in. Thought that it would be better than waiting for another trial."

1938 ← The Gooding County prosecutor advised the warden to use his authority under the 1925 Eugenics law (HB 203) and as a member of the Eugenics Board to sterilize Harvey Pettingill (no. 5455), whose father and brother-in-law were also incarcerated for serious crimes. In a report to his Oregon parole officer in 1944, Pettingill said, "I don't think people want to know me." Timple Allen (no. 5740) broke into Bratton's Department store in Lewiston "through a ventilating opening too small to get back out of." Allen fell asleep behind a counter. "When the employees of the store opened up they found him asleep, called an officer, who placed handcuffs on him and then woke him up."

1940 ← Melvin Yeager (no. 6240) forged a check for $10.00 in order to purchase a washing machine for his wife, and spent 18 months inside for the offense.

1941 ← Former inmates Edgar Pruett (no. 5658), William Rector (no. 5028 and 5723), and Lonnie Walling (no. 4592 and 5049) broke out of the Pocatello jail and "launched a crime wave in two states." The three were brought in from Las Vegas by a penitentiary guard, the Gooding County sheriff, and a Las Vegas deputy.

← Inquiring about his parole in Washington state, forger John Abel (no. 6108) found himself termed "like Hitler... a lousy 'paper hanger'... Possibly by cementing a pair of boxing gloves on you backwards, you could be kept out of prison for a day or two. You would beat this arrangement however, by learning to handle a fountain pen with your teeth or your toes... Respectfully, W. B. Coffey, Chief State Parole and Probation Officer."

The "Criminal" Americans

Much like you Americans on side of prison, we on the inside are very much interested and anxious to take part in the defense of our country. No in prison, we consider ourselves Americans first — and after that, as you may. As such, we count ourselves as chips from the same old block: Our Country, Right or Wrong, Our Country! There are many of us who are of military age; and tough and ready of calibre for combat with the likes of the treacherous Japanese and their side-kicks. And as Americans we would voice our desire for the chance to take an active part in the mobilization.

Three days after Pearl Harbor, James Hawkins (no. 6210) organized a letter signed by 99 inmates and sent to local newspapers. Hawkins and company offered their "services for National defense," arguing "Tho in prison, we consider ourselves Americans first— and after that, as you may. As such, we count ourselves chips from the same old block: Our county, Right or Wrong, Our Country! ... May America give its wayward men a chance to redeem themselves in this present war:"

Tom Takahaski (no. 2847), who had been resident in the United States since 1918 and spent time in the penitentiary in 1920-1922, was subject to investigation as an "enemy alien" one month after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

1942

W J Lamme (no. 6064) was arrested in Minnesota a few months after his release from Idaho. A Minnesota attorney wrote to the penitentiary, reporting on Lamme's recent suicide attempt and asking whether Lamme "showed any tendency toward moroseness while he was in custody in your State. I think it is due to the fact that he had not been able to escape from our jail, when captured he had saws in the soles of his shoes." The attorney went on to acknowledge cheerily the stresses of wartime shortages: "Fishing in Minnesota has been good but because of tires, I have not been fishing every Sunday this year."

Clarence Kristiansen (no. 6870) was convicted of manslaughter after he drank an "undisclosed quantity of beer and hard liquor" and, en route to his duty station at the Marsing Prisoner of War Camp in an "army one half (1/2) ton reconstructed truck," struck a group of children on horseback. Kristiansen, a Silver- and Bronze-Star decorated veteran of Monte Casino and Anzio, was pardoned after nine months in prison.

1945

James Erard (no. 7018) began accepting commissions for oil paintings from the general public. Erard, who was incarcerated for burglary for stealing bottle of perfume and a pair of driving glasses from a hotel room, was responsible for painting a mural in the penitentiary chapel.

1946

John Allie's (no. 6998) mother in Ohio sent him approximately $323 dollars, most in two- and five-dollar increments, between 1946 and 1950. Two months before his release in 1951, Allie's mother sent one check for $82.

1947

On his prison intake forms, Gerald Cline (no. 7113) listed his occupation as "tattoo artist" and the clerk recorded 22 tattoos on Cline's Bertillon chart; one is clearly visible in Cline's mug shot.

The Board of Correction ceased to grant pardon without proof of innocence. In the case of David Gemmell (no. 3517), who in 1963 requested a pardon for his 1925 incarceration so that he might pursue citizenship, the board could not be persuaded otherwise by the "considerations of humanitarianism" put forward by the governor.
